

Use case diagram specification

1. New customer and existing account user are generalizations of bank account holder;
2. New customer can sign up online account;
3. Both new customer and existing account users can login in online bank system by verifying username and password;
4. Both new customer and existing account users can transfer/deposit/withdraw money from their bank account;
5. View account details is involved in an includes relationship among money transfer/deposit/withdraw because all these operations need to check if the account balance is enough or not;
6. Bank account balance is extended from bank account details because sometimes the bank clerks may just need to know the balance instead of all account details;
7. Verify username and passwod is involved in an includes relationship between account signup and account login